Mission Statement

The Physical Education Curriculum goal is to teach all children, from the challenged to the physically gifted, how and why they should keep themselves healthy and physically active throughout their lifetimes. The Physical Education Department provides developmentally appropriate learning experiences that teach children how to be physically active in ways that increase physical competence, self-esteem and joy through lifelong physical activity. In order to achieve that goal, the Physical Education Department:

- is based on inquiry, problem-solving, discovery, and application of key concepts in the areas of skills, movement, game activities, and rhythmic and dance experiences designed to enhance the cognitive, motor, affective, and physical fitness development of every child. All students are held to high expectations and standards.
- uses a variety of strategies and approaches that encourage children to question, integrate, analyze, communicate, apply cognitive concepts, and gain a wide multi-cultural view of the world. The activities demonstrate the connections within and across disciplines in the areas of math, science, social studies, health and reading.
- utilizes activities that provide purposeful interaction, which allow children the opportunity to work together on improving their emerging social and cooperative skills. These activities also help children develop a positive self-concept.
- incorporates fitness assessment as part of an ongoing process to help children understand, enjoy, maintain and improve their physical health and well-being.
- enables children to explore exercises that keep the body in proper alignment, thereby allowing the muscles to lengthen without placing stress and strain on the surrounding joints, ligaments and tendons. This understanding of the growth process is critical to their safety in attempting new activities.
- integrates technology (computers, pedometers, and heart rate monitors) in the assessment process.

The Physical Education curriculum is designed so that ALL children are involved in activities that allow them to remain active, be successful and have fun. The knowledge gained has purpose and meaning throughout their lives.

Appropriate Physical Education Practices

As we enter the 21st century, the value of quality Physical Education and personal fitness is being recognized as never before. This growing awareness is accompanied by the knowledge that childhood is the time to begin the development of an active and healthy lifestyle. In recent years, a growing body of research, theory, and practical experience has sharpened our understanding about the beneficial aspects of our Physical Education programs, and those aspects that are counterproductive.

Changes in daily activity patterns, the increase in technology and computer use, and greater concerns about children's safety when walking in the community have contributed to the rise in childhood obesity and its associated illnesses. Now more than ever, physical education is a critical component of children's learning and development. Physical Education contributes uniquely to human development in the areas of physical growth, fitness and the development of motor skills. It also contributes to the social, affective, and cognitive components of a child's well-being and plays an important role in the development of the self-concept.

The following section is written with the intent that administrators, parents, school boards, physical educators and other policy makers will recognize the Physical Education practices that are in the best interests of students.

Components of Appropriate Physical Education Practices

1.0 Student Success Rate in Physical Education Classes

Students are given the opportunity to practice skills at high rates of success adjusted for their individual skill levels.

2.0 Use of Healthy Competition

Physical Education activities are selected and taught in a manner that emphasizes individual self-improvement, participation, and cooperation instead of "winning" and "losing."

3.0 Gender Stereotyping in Our Schools

Girls and boys are provided equal access to participation in individual, partner, small group, and team activities. Both boys and girls are encouraged equally, supported and socialized towards successful achievement in all realms of Physical Education.

4.0 Selecting Teams/Activity Groups

Teams and/or groups are formed in ways that preserve the dignity and self-respect of every child.

5.0 Using Exercise as Punishment

Fitness activities are used to help students increase their physical fitness levels in a supportive, motivating, and progressive manner. The promotion of lifetime fitness attitudes is reached in a non-threatening manner.

6.0 Student Instruction and Time-on-Task

All students are involved in activities that allow for maximum “time on task.” Classes are designed to meet a child’s need for active and involved participation in all learning experiences. Physical Education programs are adequately funded so that appropriate amounts of equipment are available to every student.

7.0 Calisthenics/Exercises for a Purpose

Appropriate exercises are taught for the specific purpose of improving the skill, coordination, and/or fitness levels of students.

Students participate in activities that are designed to help them understand and value the concepts of fitness and the contributions these concepts make to a healthy lifestyle.

8.0 Physical Fitness Testing

As part of the on-going program of Physical Education, students are physically prepared so they can safely (physically and emotionally) complete each component of a fitness test.

Test results are shared privately with the students and their parents as a tool for developing their physical fitness knowledge, understanding, and competence.

9.0 Physical Education Organization, Recess, and Playtime

Physical Education classes are planned to provide students with many opportunities to acquire the physical, emotional, cognitive, and social benefits of Physical Education.

Educators recognize the significance of daily, quality Physical Education in the student’s total educational experience.

10.0Elementary School Field Days

A field day is offered, and designed so every student is a full participant and derives a feeling of satisfaction and joy. Opportunities are provided for students to voluntarily choose from a variety of activities that are intended purely for enjoyment.

11.0Curriculum Development and Content

Personal Fitness:

Personal fitness skills are integrated throughout the Physical Education curriculum. Example: strength and endurance principles, heart-rate monitoring, stress management, the role of nutritional practices, and other fitness concepts are practiced and reinforced during other Physical Education activities.

Recreational Dance:

The Physical Education curriculum includes a variety of rhythmical, expressive, and dance experiences designed with the physical, cultural, emotional, and social abilities of the students in mind.

Game and Sport Skills:

Game skills are taught using a variety of drills and games that have been selected, designed, sequenced, and modified by teachers to maximize the learning and enjoyment for students.

Developmental Gymnastics:

Students are encouraged to develop skills appropriate to their ability and confidence levels in non-competitive situations. Students are able to practice on apparatus designed for their confidence and skill level, and can design sequences that allow for success at their personal skill level.

Teacher as the Instructional Leader:

Teachers establish and maintain a positive, safe, and effective learning environment that fosters a meaningful Physical Education experience for all students with a strong focus on instructional success.

Scope and Sequence Stages

Attempt: Try a skill with a lot of repetitions with the emphasis on exposure to the skill, not perfection.

Demonstrate: Be observed doing the skill, with quality effort, by the teacher or a peer. Receive comments or corrections from the observer.

Replicate: Be able to describe the progression of the skill to another students or teacher. Demonstrate the skill without cues.

Explore: Take risks in applying it to other settings. Use the skill comfortably in game and activity settings.

Evaluation in Physical Education

Various assessment techniques may be employed to evaluate student learning and development. As a result of Acton's five elementary schools having unique values statements and philosophies, physical education teachers at the schools may assess using a combination of a variety of the methods described below.

Formal Teacher Assessment

- Quarterly Report Cards or Assessment Sheets on individual student performance: These provide teacher feedback on performance, ability to use class time and materials appropriately, ability to work with others, and openness to trying new activities.
- PACER Result Reports: Teachers record student scores reported by students' partners for the Fitnessgram Progressive Aerobic Cardiovascular Endurance Run in comparison to "healthy zone" per grade level on annual fitness report sheet to parents.

Formal Student Assessment

- Student Portfolio: Students collect worksheets used in class for self-assessment and partner assessment to demonstrate student learning.
- Self-assessment: Students may report their own understanding in a variety of ways. Worksheets with pictures of a student performing a skill may be used to assess whether a student understands the important elements of performing a skill. Hand-outs with check-lists of important elements of skills allow students to record their proficiency at technical components learned.
- Peer Assessment: Students record a partner's performance to demonstrate cognitive awareness of skill components as well as to assist partner in performing skills. Students will also record partner's PACER performance.
